Power of the Pen and the National Writing Project at Kent State University present:

KERNELS OF WISDOM: RECLAIMING NARRATIVE WRITING IN THE CLASSROOM

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT FOR TEACHERS

Saturday, November 3, 2018, 9 a.m. to noon

White Hall, Kent State University

Cost: $30 Contact Hours: 3

Keynote speaker: Dr. Lori Wilfong, author of Writing Strategies that Work: Do This! Not That!

Join Power of the Pen and the National Writing Project at Kent State University for a morning of high-energy sessions focused on bringing out the best in students' personal and creative narrative writing. We will explore strategies for helping students turn the kernel of an idea into a compelling story. The morning will feature a keynote followed by your choice of two of five breakout sessions. Every attendee will receive a Power of the Pen prompt book (a great resource for all teachers of writers) and a journal.

Ideal for anyone looking for new ideas to draw out the writer in every student; perfect for Power of the Pen coaches!

Online registration will open soon. Details on the breakout sessions will be posted when online registration opens. For more information, contact nwp@kent.edu.
